MAGAZINE STORY MENTIONS CLINE

A native of Terre Haute, Ray S. Cline figures prominently in the controversy currently swirling around the position of Ambassador Adlai Stevenson's role in the Cuban crisis. Cline, 44-year-old Harvard graduate, was quoted in an article by Stewart Alsop and Charles Bartlett as the official who informed presidential aide, McGeorge Bundy that intelligence reports from U-2 flights over Cuba confirmed the Soviet missile buildup. Cline is the son of Mrs. Ina

May Cline of 821 South Ninth Street. He attended Sarah Scott Junior High School and was graduated from Wiley High School in 1935. Cline was appointed to the CIA post in May of this year succeeding Robert Amory Jr. He entered government service in 1942 as a cryptanalyst, joined the Office of Strategic Services the following year and later served in the War Department.
